

WHAT TO LOOK FOR...

The main symptoms of coronavirus are:

- a high temperature – this means you feel hot to touch on your chest or back (you do not need to measure your temperature)
- a new, continuous cough – this means coughing a lot for more than an hour, or 3 or more coughing episodes in 24 hours (if you usually have a cough, it may be worse than usual)
- a loss or change to your sense of smell or taste – this means you've noticed you cannot smell or taste anything, or things smell or taste different to normal

COVID SELF-ISOLATION

A guide for parents of young people isolating from school

PARENTAL SELF-CARE

As parents, you are likely to put your children's health, wellbeing and feelings first – remember you are just as important. You're doing your best as a parent and your best to support them with school work. You will get frustrated and stressed – this is normal. Don't be afraid to make time for yourself. Set aside some time each day to do something you enjoy to take care of your own well-being.

- Keep physically active – this can improve your mental health & boosts your immune system.
- Get outside - this has been proven to reduce anxiety.
- A plan or timetable, even a loose one, can help alleviate uncertainty for everyone.
- Get up and get dressed, keep the same mealtimes, bath time and bed times.
- Take a hot bath or shower
- Ground yourself by noticing five things around you as you slow your breathing
- Rub your temples in small circles

HOW MIGHT MY CHILD BE FEELING

It's quite understandable that your child may feel a range of moods while self-isolating and at times be worried or feel low. It's important that they are reassured this is quite normal and it will pass.

There are some signs to look out for that your child may be feeling anxious or worried - they may:

- Become irritable, tearful or clingy
- Start waking at night, have bad dreams or have trouble sleeping
- Have trouble eating or have changes with their appetite
- Have angry outbursts
- Think negative thoughts or that bad things are going to happen
- Avoid contact with family or friends
- Have continuous low mood, sadness or frequent tears

Try encouraging your child to talk to you or another family member or friend about how they are feeling.

RETURNING TO SCHOOL

Returning to school after a period of self-isolation or quarantine can be difficult for some young people. They may worry about catching up with work or seeing friends again.

Returning to school is critical for young people's education and wellbeing and schools are working hard to manage these changes. However, young people might need extra reassurance if they are struggling. Encourage or arrange for them to speak to a trusted member of staff if they are worried.

If you have any concerns about your child returning to school ask to speak to a member of the school team- they will be able to tell you all the measures in place for keeping safe and provide clear guidance on when you should and shouldn't send your child in to school.
